

I am responding to your request of public comment regarding violence on TV. I believe there is too much violence but not necessarily during prime time. I would say the prime time problem is too much sexual discussion/innuendo. The really horrible violence seems to be on cable networks. Do you have jurisdiction over them? Quality programing is what our family watches, but the general public must be buying what the sponsors are selling. What happened to the value of intellect?